Call for papers

This year, the Centre of Research in Social and Cultural Anthropology will host the 22nd international conference of Arab Sociologists' Generations from 19th to 24th October 2019. The conference is organised by the Arab Association of Sociology in collaboration with the Centre of Research in Social and Cultural Anthropology and with the support of Hanns-Seidel Foundation.

This scientific event aims at creating an academic atmosphere that allows knowledge sharing and intellectual exchange on various problematics and issues of interest to Arab researchers; i.e. matters that impose themselves as fundamental research themes in the different disciplines of social sciences and humanities. Researchers are invited to discuss the issues in relation to the different contexts and the changes that Arab countries, in particular, are witnessing as well as the whole world.

This scientific initiative, as it has been the tradition, comes to develop the methodological and theoretical approaches among young researchers, enhance their abilities to practise the research process and reinforce their representations for the research course and perspectives on field experience.

The conference also seeks to observe the most salient themes that interest the younger generation of Arab researchers in connection with the accumulation of knowledge in the field of social sciences and humanities. It has set the goal of achieving the challenge to move forward research projects to the furthest possible extent to approach the phenomena of interest through a critical and epistemological reading of sociological themes and by presenting specific cases that address the field and extract the significations generated by the various systems overlapping to build the societal and communal entities that contemporary Arab societies embody with their manifestations and paradoxes.

Twenty young researchers from Arab countries will participate in this conference. They should be conducting master/ doctoral research projects and have the desire to discuss them collectively for the sake of enhancing the research quality. A community of Arab scholars, experienced in supervising scientific research, will participate in the event too.

Terms and procedures

- It is preferable that the candidate should not exceed the age of 33 years old (exceptionally for the 22nd conference).
- The candidate must submit an application for participation download the application [En/ Ar] before 1st September 2019; including the research title, an abstract and curriculum vitae indicating the level of the study, the institution and the supervisor, along with the address, email and phone number.
