Research Division in Anthropology of Education and Training System

Seminar

September 27, 2020

9h 30 – 12h 30

"Back to School in Algeria and the Pandemic: Social and Educational Issues".

The Research Division in Anthropology of Education and Training System (Crasc) is organising a seminar on Sunday, September 27, 2020, entitled "Back to School in Algeria and the Pandemic: Social and Educational Issues".

This scientific meeting, which addresses the educational issue and its relations with the family institution during the health crisis of Covid-19, is a continuation of the discussions already commenced at the first virtual symposium organized by Crasc on 03 and 04 June 2020 on "Pandemic and Society" (session: 05).

The likely return to classes on 04 October 2020 invites us to question the adaptive abilities of actors and educational institutions after considerable period of break with classes (more than 6 months).

Without imposing a precise agenda of questions, and not forgetting the international dimension that gives fertile possibilities for comparison, four axes are proposed to frame this Seminar, namely:

- 1- The question of the daily life of "learners" (excluding schooling periods are children, adolescents, young people) during the period of de-schooling.
- 2- The question of the preparation of the end-of-cycle exams, notably the Baccalaureate exam, and the family and educational conditions.
- 3- The issues of returning to schools in the speeches of the actors (teachers, parents, unions, educators).
- 4- The issue of lightening curricula and managing school time.

Participation in this meeting through an oral intervention (no more than 15 minutes) or in the debates will take two forms: in-person and virtual.
